Q. 4. Answer the following questions. (10)

A) In a modern country, the government is run by wise, educated, and honest leaders who work only for the welfare of the people. Everyone in society performs duties according to their abilities, and there is harmony and justice in the system. In the light of this situation, explain how this reflects Plato's idea of the Ideal State.

OR

B) In a democratic society, citizens participate actively in law-making and respect rules that promote the welfare of all. A leader argues that the purpose of the state is not to limit individual freedom but to help people realise their moral and social duties. Based on this situation, explain T.H. Green's concept of the State and General Will. How does the State help individuals achieve true freedom?
